ELEMENTS SCAVENGER HUNT

Read the description of the painting carefully. Then find every element of art hiding in it: write where you found each one and the words that prove it. Finish with the two questions.

THE PAINTING: HARBOUR AT SUNRISE

Three fishing boats sit in the front of the picture, their red hulls overlapping so the nearest boat hides part of the one behind it. Thick coiled ropes lie on the quay, painted with short scratchy strokes so they look rough enough to burn your hands. A tall white lighthouse rises in one straight vertical stroke on the right, and the sky behind it changes slowly from pale yellow at the horizon to deep blue at the top. Round orange buoys bob beside the boats, flat circles against the water. In the corner a wooden barrel is shaded dark on its left side and bright on its right, so it looks solid enough to roll. Far away, the hills are tiny, pale and misty, placed high on the canvas.

1. What mood does the painting have, and which element creates it most? Give evidence from the description.

2. Where does your eye go first, and why? (Think about the principle of emphasis.)

ELEMENTS SCAVENGER HUNT ANSWER KEY

THE PAINTING: HARBOUR AT SUNRISE

1. Calm/peaceful or hopeful; most answers will credit colour (the yellow-to-blue sky) or the soft value of the misty hills. Accept any element with evidence.

2. Most likely the red boats (bright warm colour, large, in front) or the white lighthouse (tall vertical against the sky). Either with a reason.
