THE BAKE SALE

Noor had planned the class bake sale for weeks. She made a chart of who would bring what and ticked off each name. Her classmate Felix had promised lemon cupcakes, but on the morning of the sale he arrived with an empty box. "The oven broke," he mumbled, staring at his shoes.

Noor's cheeks went hot. "The whole table was counting on you!" she snapped. Then she saw Felix's face and took a slow breath. "Okay. Let's fix it."

Mr Abara, the caretaker, overheard them. "The staff kitchen has an oven," he said, jingling his keys, "and I happen to have an hour." He helped them carry the batter upstairs and showed Felix how to test a cupcake with a toothpick. By lunchtime the lemon cupcakes were sold out, and Felix, pink with pride, had to tell three teachers the recipe.

CHARACTER TRAITS: PROVE IT ANSWER KEY

Name: ..... Date: .....

PART 1: TRAITS AND EVIDENCE

Noor | organised (also quick-tempered, then fair) | "made a chart of who would bring what and ticked off each name"; "she snapped"; "took a slow breath"

Felix | embarrassed / honest (proud at the end) | "mumbled, staring at his shoes"; "The oven broke"; "pink with pride"

Mr Abara | helpful / generous | "I happen to have an hour"; "helped them carry the batter upstairs and showed Felix how to test a cupcake"

PART 2: THINK ABOUT THE CHARACTERS

1. Felix: he starts embarrassed, staring at his shoes, and ends pink with pride, telling teachers the recipe. (Accept Noor: she snaps, then calms down and decides to fix it.)

2. She notices Felix's face, takes a breath and says "Let's fix it" instead of blaming him.
