On a long spring day, Frank and Hank went to the pond. They sang all the way up the bank. A pink bird sat on a log and did not blink. Frank did not think he would see a skunk, but one ran past the trunk of a tall tree. Hank drank his milk and swung his bag onto a flat rock. A frog went plunk into the pond and sank. They hung a wet sock on a plank to dry. For lunch they had ham and jam, and they found a clam shell by the water. Hank thanked Frank for the long day. Then they sang one more song, and the sun sank. The small pond went still.
