PART 2: READ THE STORY

On a rainy Saturday morning, Maya heard a tiny sound outside her window. It was a mew. She pulled on her boots and ran down the wet steps. Under Mr Ortiz's parked car sat a small grey kitten, shivering and too scared to come out.

Maya lay flat on the pavement and held out her hand. The kitten backed away. Her brother Sam came out with an umbrella. "Try food," he said. Maya fetched a spoonful of tuna from the kitchen and set it near the edge of the car. Slowly, one paw at a time, the kitten crept out and began to eat.

While it ate, Maya noticed a little blue collar with a tag. "Pepper. 14 Elm Street," it said. That was Mr Ortiz's house! Maya wrapped Pepper in her jacket and knocked on his door. Mr Ortiz had been looking for Pepper all morning. He thanked Maya and Sam, and Pepper purred all the way inside.
