THE LOST TICKET

Jun's day started badly. At breakfast, in the warm kitchen, he realised the train ticket for the school trip was not in his bag. His mum searched the drawers while the clock ticked towards eight.

By half past eight Jun was on the platform at Crown Street Station, shivering in the wind, with no ticket and a worried teacher. "Check your coat," Miss Lane suggested. Jun turned his pockets inside out. Nothing. Miss Lane bought a replacement from the machine.

At midday the class spread out across the grassy hill outside the Science Centre, eating lunch in bright sunshine. Jun unfolded a napkin from his lunchbox, and out fluttered a small orange ticket. Everyone laughed, Jun loudest of all.

That evening, back in the kitchen, Jun pinned the ticket to the fridge. "A souvenir," he told his mum, "of the day I looked everywhere except in my sandwich."

THINK ABOUT IT

1. How does the weather match how Jun feels in the second and third parts?

2. Why do you think the story ends in the same place it began?

SETTING CHANGE TRACKER ANSWER KEY

Name: ..... Date: .....

TRACK THE SETTING

Beginning | the warm kitchen at home | breakfast, before eight | "At breakfast, in the warm kitchen"; "the clock ticked towards eight"

Next | the platform at Crown Street Station | half past eight, morning | "By half past eight"; "on the platform"; "shivering in the wind"

Then | the grassy hill outside the Science Centre | midday | "At midday"; "grassy hill"; "bright sunshine"

End | the kitchen at home | that evening | "That evening, back in the kitchen"

THINK ABOUT IT

1. On the cold, windy platform he is worried and miserable; on the sunny hill he is relieved and laughing. The weather changes with his mood.

2. It shows the day has come full circle: the problem that started in the kitchen is solved, and the ticket becomes a souvenir (a happy ending at home).
