GLUED SOUNDS

Name: ..... Date: .....

Read each chunk out loud as one sound, then read the example word. Write the word twice on the lines under it.

THREE ON THEIR OWN

all	am	an
ball	ham	can

THE -NG FAMILY

ang	ing	ong	ung
rang	ring	song	hung

THE -NK FAMILY

ank	ink	onk	unk
bank	pink	honk	junk

Why they are glued. In each of these chunks the vowel and the sound after it run together so tightly that you cannot hear them one at a time. Say an on its own: the a is already turning into the n. Say ink: the i is not the clean short i you hear in it. Sounding these words out letter by letter gives the wrong answer, so the chunk is learned as one piece, like a single letter. Some programs call them welded sounds.

onk is the smallest family: honk, bonk and conk are almost the only common words. The other ten chunks each have ten or more.
