TWO-STUDENT FIRST / THEN

Name: ..... Date: .....

One page, two boards, for an adult who is running two children at the same table. Each child sees only their own row: put the work picture on the left and the reward picture on the right, and read each board out separately. Do not let one child earn from the other child's board, because the whole point is that the deal belongs to one person.

If the two children work for the same reward, give each of them their own copy of it. Sharing one reward turns a First-Then board into a race, and the slower child stops trying.

Cut between the two boards if the children sit apart.
