THERMOMETER AT HOME

Name: ..... Date: .....

The same five levels, in home words. Fill in the lines together on a quiet evening, then put the sheet on the fridge where everyone can see it.

5. Out of control

At home: Shouting, throwing, hitting out, running off. I cannot stop myself.

What helps at this level: .....

4. Very upset

At home: Slamming doors, stamping, a very loud voice, refusing to move.

What helps at this level: .....

3. Upset

At home: Snapping at people, crying, arguing over small things.

What helps at this level: .....

2. A little bothered

At home: Grumpy, sighing, hanging around, nothing is quite right.

What helps at this level: .....

1. Calm

At home: Chatty or quiet and settled, happy to be in the room with everyone.

What helps at this level: .....

OUR FAMILY PLAN

What we will say when we notice level 2 or 3

.....

Where the calm spot is, and who goes there with you

.....

What we do after a level 5, once everyone is calm again

.....

Agree the plan when nobody is upset, and keep the wording short enough to say out loud in the moment. Parents can use the scale on themselves too: "I am at a 3, I need five minutes" teaches more than the chart does.
